HOUSE VOTES 235 TO 5 FOR INAUGURAL GRANDSTAND

Washington, Jan. 10.—Five members of the house, due from President-elect Harding's home state and the others from the south, voted today to cut down the $100,000 appropriation for erection of a grandstand at the capitol from which congress, as in years gone by, braves the bleak March weather during the big outdoor inaugural ceremony. Against this handful, 235 members voted for the fund, so that the long established custom might still prevail.

By its action the house made possible the carrying out of the part of congress in the celebration. It has nothing to do with any pagan downfall of an inaugural ball, against which there has been protest on the ground that the pension building, desired for the night festivities, is needed for the proper conduct of the government's pension business. Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, leader in the fight for simplicity, indicated that he would keep it up in an effort to prevent other appropriations.

Representative Blanton of Texas hurried a firebrand into the usual routine proceeding by protesting against the expenditure, but on the first vote he stood alone in support of an amendment making the amount $10,000.

There was a rear from both sides of the chamber, several democrats urging their party not to be swayed by the plea of money-saving for such an event, declaring that the president-elect was adverse to a spectacular inaugural. Representative Reavis, republican, Nebraska, insisted that a time-honored ceremony of half a century standing should not be stopped by the cry of "demagogues." Representative Hudspeth of Texas brought a volley of applause by the statement that the people of Texas, who decisively voted against Senator Harding, did not subscribe to Mr. Blanton's view.

WAGE CUT OF 22 1/2 PER CENT. BY AMERICAN WOOLLEN CO.

Lawrence, Mass., Jan. 10.—The public attitude against maintaining the wages of textile workers at the high war-time rates, President William M. Wood, of the American Woollen Company, said tonight in reference to the reduction of 22 1/2 per cent. in the wages of the operatives in the fifty mills of that company which was announced today. This cut brought into the lower wage levels of the textile trade in New England the last important manufacturing interest involved.

Addressing the overseers of the American Woollen Company's four mills in this city at a dinner at his home in Andover, President Wood said that the decision to readjust wages was reached "with a full regard for what is just" to the company's workers. "If the prevailing rate of wages could have been maintained I would have been only too glad," he said, "but the attitude of the public is against it. They will not pay the prices which the present wages involves and we must all of us bow to the public will."

"We have had several years of active and prosperous business. Our mills have been running full, and our employees have been paid wages much higher than ever before. But now, suddenly, we are called upon to face the most drastic adjustment the business has ever known. This is not altogether pleasant. It inevitably means reduced prices for our goods, reduced profits, and reduced wages."

"The first important thing to do is to keep our mills open and running, so far as possible. We have got to cut down unnecessary costs. We have got to cut out extravagance and cultivate economy. I am convinced that we cannot resume operations unless our labor costs are reduced."
